

Final Task and lecture on Tuesday

by Oded Y Steinberg - Sunday, 11 January 2026, 8:53 AM

Dear all,

As I stated we wont have a class this week, due to the conference.

I would be very happy if you can come to a lecture on Tuesday by Sam Harshbarger, who visited our class. See the invitation.

In addition, see here the instructions for the final task. As you can see it is rather flexible . I also added these to the moodle under " final task."

Regarding the final paper: please submit 7–10 pages focusing on one of the issues of German nationalism.

You may expand your paper from the midterm assignment. You may also, of course, address topics that we did not have time to discuss, such as the unification of Germany, as well as events that are not usually considered significant but in fact should be regarded as such.

The most important requirement is to engage in a critical discussion of several sources, including primary sources (there is an entire database of sources available in English for those who do not read German),

1.5 line spacing,

footnotes.

Thanks

Oded
